The new method of advertising the prices of merchants goods, seem to attract public attention, and to be up to date and in the swim with the pushing business men, make or bust.

I announce herewith that I will sell bed-room sets complete at $22.50, $25.00, $27.50, $30.00, $35.00 and $40.00. Double speig and top mattresses from $14.50 to $18.00. Single lounges $10.00 and $12.00. Bed lounges $14.00 to $20.00, all other articles reduced in proportion, and will assure anyone that takes the trouble to call that the goods are all new and up to date. No furniture store can make ordinary expenses at the above prices, but I don't expect to make money these times, my aim is in common with the other merchants of Carson to leave no excuse for parties sending out of town for goods. ## THE LYNCHERS TRIUMPH.

Grand Jury in the Uber Case
Stand 9 to 8

Yesterday morning the Douglas Grand Jury met at 10:30, the usual hour, and worked on the Uber lynch case until noon. After lunch they met at 1 o'clock and going to the jury room had an informal talk for about fifteen minutes and then began the preliminary discussion before balloting on the case.

They took seven ballots and all the results were the same—9 to 8 in favor of indicting the seven men who were the ring leaders of the lynchers of Uber. The State lacked three votes of enough to make the indictment stick, and it was plain that the successive balloting would not make the slightest difference.

This balloting and discussion was kept up until nearly 3 o'clock when Judge Mack was sent for, and the jury came into court.

There was a large crowd of people anxious to hear the result. Richard Cook, the foreman of the jury, rose and said:

"I don't think there is the slightest use of this jury doing anything more in the Uber case. It is impossible to secure an indictment."

The news spread rapidly over town and a telephone message was sent to Gardnerville, where there was a great feeling of satisfaction.

In Genoa the case was different and the majority of people expressed intense disgust that the jury lacked the backbone to do their duty. Foreman Cook, who all along grappled with the case honestly and with a desire to bring the guilty men to justice, said to a reporter:

"The jury got all the evidence available and in all there were sixty-five witnesses who testified against the lynchers. Nine of us considered that District Attorney Virgin made out a complete case, but there were eight men who apparently did not think so. They seemed weak kneed but I cannot believe the stories that any of them were corruptly influenced. They seemed honestly to think that there was not evidence, I will say that there was no attempt to smother evidence."

District Attorney Virgin said: "There was sufficient evidence to convict several men. It was plain, direct evidence; I cannot say now that I will ask for another Grand Jury, but if I get some additional evidence I expect, I shall certainly call for it. I think the Court will give me another Grand Jury if I ask for it." The Judge said when questioned: "I have nothing to say. It is not my place to say anything, except that District Attorney Virgin and Mr. Cook, Foreman of the Grand Jury, did their whole duty honestly and fearlessly. They did splendid work in the cause of justice and law."

In the town of Genoa the talk was very free after the result was known. "It took lots of this to save those scoundrels," said one man rubbing his thumb and finger together suggestively. "They had their paid workers here all the while."

Another said: "I saw a little valise come over from Gardnerville last week and it was very heavy when it came and empty when it went back. Some people who were red hot against the lynchers when it happened, changed their tune after the stuff came over here."

This was a fair sample of the talk on the streets of Genoa and about the saloons. It is not charged, however, that the jury was bought to ignore the bill, but that men were paid to influence them by making them think that the majority of the people wanted the county saved the expense. This was the main lever used to influence them.

Some it is said, had openly expressed themselves in favor of the lynchers before the Grand Jury was called, and it is also charged in Genoa that the Grand Jury was illegally drawn by the clerk, who in drawing the names out of the box laid some aside on the table that really belonged in the panel. Had the indictment been found, the accused would have set this up as a defense. Some say that this was accident and some hint that it was design.

Lost His Arm.

El Perkins, formerly engineer at the Asylum, had the misfortune to lose his right arm while at work at Truckee Sunday evening. His arm was caught in some machinery and so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. Mr. Perkins is a brother-in-law of Ed Carpenter of Wells Fargo & Co.—Journal.

John Gidathi had 1000 sheep in the stock corral last night. The dogs got after them and, in their fright to get away, the sheep piled up in such a manner as to smother 308 of them.—Journal.

Unfair to the Medico.

War has broken in Ohio between the medics and the newspaper. The medicine companies have withdrawn their advertisements from newspapers and the latter threaten whenever a death occurs, to publish the name of the doctor who attended the case. This is a most unfair proposition and as unfair as it is unreasonable. Nothing in this life is more certain than death. Once in the life of every human being comes the final ending and it is unfair to throw the blame of death on the doctor who happens to be so unfortunate as to be called in at that time. Again it is often the case that the doctor of the best standing is not called in until the case becomes a very serious one and he frequently is called when his skill is too late to be of the slightest service to the patient. Under these circumstances it would be unfair to the doctor to blame him for the death of his patient, especially if some other doctor started the subject on the down grade before-hand by an improper diagnosis of the case, or unskillful treatment. Under these circumstances it would be unfair for the paper to lay the charge of the patient's death to the door of the last physician who attended the case.

An Operatic Success.

It is easy to account for the remarkably great success of the Calhoun Opera Company in the past four seasons which appears at the Opera House next Thursday night, when we think of its equipment. This season the equipment will be more perfect than ever before. The principal singers are of undoubted reputation and among them may be named George Lyding, known the world over; Ben-trice McKenzie, a beautiful prima donna soprano, with a voice that is rich and round and clear, and with a face and physique which delights the eye of both men and women; Adelaide Farrington one of the best prima donna soubrettes before the public today, and Edward Webb, the well-known tenor comique; Jack Allison, James Durrant, Mount Joy Walker, Louis Lewis, Maude Allison and Stella Madison, all favorites with the public. A chorus much larger than before and an orchestra under the direction of Mr. Richard F. Lindsay, adds much to the harmony and rendition of the operas produced. Costumes, properties, scenery, calciums, electrical effects and all the paraphernalia are of the highest order, and the appearance here of this company will undoubtedly be the society event of the season.

The California Murderer.

Sheriff McDeid arrived Saturday from Lovelock with W. H. Hubbard, the California murderer, an account of whose crime and arrest appeared in Saturday's issue. Hubbard, when brought face to face with C. J. Hooley brother of the boy whom he killed, was positively identified as the right man.

Hubbard was not surprised when arrested and made no resistance. He admits the killing, but claims that he did it in self defense and that he will have no trouble in getting out of the scrape. It would seem that he has made no particular attempt to escape arrest, as he has always gone by his real name. He says he even met the Deputy Sheriff of Sierra county at Truckee, but the latter either did not know him or wish to arrest him. Hubbard says he will go back for trial without awaiting requisition papers, and the Sierra county Sheriff will probably arrive tomorrow for his prisoner.—Silver State.

War on the New England Cotton Mills.

(SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE.)

BOSTON, January 15.—The operators in over half a hundred cotton mills in the New England States ceased to be paid under the old schedule of prices when they left their work today. On Monday morning the general policy of the manufacturers to reduce wages will be in effect in nearly every mill center in the six States. The reduction will then become operative in the cotton mills of New Bedford, Lowell, Pawtucket and Blackstone Valley in Rhode Island, and in the States of Maine and New Hampshire.

The Strike will Force Prices up Again, Therefore buy while Prices are Lower than for Twenty Years Past.
